Task 1: READING COMPREHENSION

Read the text about Jason Momoa, a famous actor and environmental activist.

Being a devout moviegoer, I have developed a keen interest in SF and fantasy over the years. For years, it has been a monthly treat to enjoy special effects and incredible sound on the big screen with my best friend. As we grew older and responsibilities kicked in, these special occasions became fewer and wider apart. However, we still cherish this tradition, carefully choosing the film and coordinating workload and deadlines.

We both share the same enthusiasm for the superhero archetype: Batman, Wonder Woman, Black Panther, Thor... to name just a few. But then we became enchanted by the HBO series Game of Thrones and joined the worldwide craze for Khal Drogo, aka Jason Momoa. Even though he has been acting in the film and TV industries for more than 20 years, he has become known worldwide during the last couple of years. His performance in the aforementioned Game of Thrones played a significant role in making him a household name, but being cast as Aquaman unquestionably launched him to the top of the list.

At first, we both thought of him as just another handsome musclehead, but as time went on, we realized he was so much more. We came across a lot of newspaper and magazine articles and watched his appearances in numerous shows where he presented his passions for environment, nature, and sustainability. This Hawaii-born actor was the perfect choice for playing the handsome Atlantean king fighting ocean pollution.

Since 2015, the people of Hawaii have been protesting against building another telescope on Mauna Kea, the tallest mountain in the Hawaii Islands, and our man Jason was with them from the start. This dormant volcano, considered to be sacred by the natives, is already covered with numerous unused telescopes that were supposed to be dismantled by now. In August 2019, hundreds of protesters gathered once again in Hawaii to stop this huge new telescope from being built. Our Hawaii-born Aquaman joined the protesters again, this time together with his two small children, posting on social media numerous times and using every opportunity he had to talk about the issue in the media. Other stars, most notably Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson and Bruno Mars, who were born and raised in Hawaii, also voiced their support for the protesters, both live and over the social media.

The most memorable and powerful speech was the one Jason Momoa gave in a meeting on Small Island Developing States in the General Assembly hall in the UN building, held in September 2019. He started by stating: "We are a disease that is infecting our planet... From the atmosphere to the Abyssal Zone, we are polluted." Momoa continued to address the issue of ocean pollution: "The oceans are in a state of emergency. Entire marine ecosystems are vanishing with the warming of the seas, and as the waste of our world empties into our waters, we face the devastating crisis of plastic pollution." But personally, the most powerful and ominous was his statement: "As a human species we need the Earth to survive. And make no mistake, the Earth doesn't need us." Who wouldn't be completely and utterly enchanted by this fellow?
