

A 3D wireframe diagram of a rectangular box. A horizontal dashed line runs across the middle of the box, dividing it into two equal halves. Inside the box, there are two rectangles: one is positioned in the upper half, and the other is in the lower half. The rectangles are oriented horizontally. The box's edges are represented by solid lines, while the internal dividing line is dashed.